Boxer Rebellion

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

For the rock band from London, see The Boxer Rebellion \(band\).

"The Boxers" redirects here. For other uses, see Boxers \(disambiguation\).

The Boxer Rebellion, Boxer Uprising or Yihetuan Movement was an anti-imperialist uprising which took place in China towards the end of the Qing dynasty between 1899 and 1901. It was initiated by the Militia United in Righteousness (Yihetuan), known in English as the "Boxers", and was motivated by proto-nationalist sentiments and opposition to foreign imperialism and associated Christian missionary activity. The Great Powers intervened and defeated the Chinese forces.

The uprising took place against a background of severe drought and the disruption caused by the growth of foreign spheres of influence. After several months of growing violence against the foreign and Christian presence in Shandong and the North China plain, in June 1900, Boxer fighters, convinced they were invulnerable to foreign weapons, converged on Beijing with the slogan "Support Qing government and exterminate the foreigners." Foreigners and Chinese Christians sought refuge in the Legation Quarter. In response to reports of an armed invasion to lift the siege, the initially hesitant Empress Dowager Cixi supported the Boxers and on June 21 declared war on the foreign powers. Diplomats, foreign civilians and soldiers as well as Chinese Christians in the Legation Quarter were placed under siege by the Imperial Army of China and the Boxers for 55 days.

Chinese officialdom was split between those supporting the Boxers and those favoring conciliation, led by Prince Qing. The supreme commander of the Chinese forces, the Manchu General Ronglu (Junglu), later claimed that he acted to protect the besieged foreigners. The Eight-Nation Alliance, after being initially turned back, brought 20,000 armed troops to China, defeated the Imperial Army, and captured Beijing on August 14, lifting the siege of the Legations. Uncontrolled plunder of the capital and the surrounding countryside ensued, along with the summary execution of those suspected of being Boxers.

The Boxer Protocol of September 7, 1901 provided for the execution of government officials who had supported the Boxers, provisions for foreign troops to be stationed in Beijing, and 450 million taels of silver—more than the government's annual tax revenue—to be paid as indemnity over the course of the next thirty-nine years to the eight nations involved.^[6]

Mabel Myers

See Mabel's cards Go Back

Mabel Myers was an ordinary farm wife as far as I know, but in one way I think she was quite extra-ordinary. Mabel had a talent for drawing and used it to create some beautiful cards which she sent to her friends in the community. I wonder if she was the poet who penned the verses too! In going through some old papers, I came across a number of these cards which had been sent to our house. Though you can't see their delicate colors, you can see what a good artist she was.

John Crozier

There are many postcards in existence today which show scenes of North Liberty life. The photographer is named on one of them as John Crozier. He usually carefully labeled each photo in white ink. Without these photos, many buildings and people now long gone, would be completely forgotten and unavailable to future generations except by words. The drawings in this stack were made possible by the existence of photos left by Mr. Crozier.

Annotation by Don Smith 2015.1225 – John P. Crozier of North Liberty IA and William N. Crozier of Riverside IA were sons of William Crozier of Kansas. John Crozier named his only son William D. Crozier after the boy's grandfather. John P. Crozier was a farmer in Penn Township.

William N. Crozier of Riverside IA was a professional photographer for period beginning sometime before 1910 and ending sometime after 1930. From 1910 to 1930, he took an estimated 30,000 pictures in the communities of North Liberty, Riverside, Lone Tree and Nichols. The estimate is based on sequential serial numbers he etched on many of his picture negatives. He aggressively sought out school class pictures at the beginning of school years and public events such as town homecoming days in the fall. His objective was to sell his printed pictures to persons participating in these events. He would provide identifying information on many of his prints by etching onto the negative "Crozier Photo," a serial number, the date, and the event, but this was not done with consistency.

The time period 1907-1915 is known as the Golden Age of Picture Postcards. The US Postal Service had authorized the private printing of penny postcards with a picture on all of the front side and, on the back side, a message space on the left half and an address space on the right half. In 1910, William N. Crozier was printing school pictures on a new "Kruxo" variety photo stock postcard that was sold by the Kilborn Photo-Paper Co. of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, for several years thereafter. Those postcards had the word "Kruxo" printed on all four sides of the stamp box. Picture postcards of that era were (and still are) highly prized collectibles.
